The robberies they have been the work of one man The robbery on Thursday night, when Mrs

Charles B. Caldwell of 64 East Fifty-eighth street was relieved of her two hand satchels, caused the railroad to institute a thorough search. Mrs. Cashwell, accompanied by her daughter, was returning to this city on the Montreal express which is due in Troy early in the morning. They were in a Wagner car, and their satchels were in a small rack directly above their heads. At Sa atoga Mrs. Caldwell is sure the satchels were in the rack, but just after loaving Troy she noticed that they were gone. One contained jewelry to the value of about $600 and about $70 in money. After reaching this city a tolerarm was received at the office of Mr. Caldwell informing him that the satchels had been recovered.

They were found on the front steps of the residence of G. A. Packer of Troy by a servant guri. A gold watch and a diamond ring were found on the steps. The rest of the lewelry, to the amount of $400, was missing. The detectives' theory is that the theft was committed while the train was in the station at Troy. street was relieved of her two hand satchels

FEACTURED KELLY'S SKULL

Property Fatal Result of a Political Disegusion in a Brooklyn Salcon.

Thomas Kelly, aged 17, of 138 Dean street, and Christian Erst. 19, of 227 Fulton street. Brooklyn, met in a saloon at 66 Smith street. Yesterday morning, and got into a political discussion over their drinks, which resulted in a fight. They began by throwing glasses at each other and finally clinched. Kelly was beating Erst in the face and on the bead with a broken bottle, when the latter threw him down, his head striking a cuspidor.

Kelly became unconscious and Erst was so weak from the loss of blood that he could not regain his feet. An ambulance was called and it was found that Kelly's skull had been fractured. Erst's head was covered with cuts, four of which were stitched up. Both men were taken to the Brooklyn Hospital, where they are held as prisoners.

At the hospital last night it was said that Kelly's injuries were not necessarily fatal, and that he was resting easily. The saloon was closed by the police, but no arrests were made. a fight. They began by throwing glasses at Consul Johnson Removed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.-Edmund Johnson has been removed from the consulate at Kiel. Germany, for false representation as to his military services and for fraudulent practices as Consul. The case has been under investigation by Secretary of State Foster for the last month, and definite action was taken on Saturday. Mr. Johnson was first appointed to the consular service in 1872, has at various times undergone investigation, and was once removed, but soon afterward re-entered the consular service and has maintained his place upon the representation that he was repeatedly wounded in various battles during the civil war and was thereby greatly impaired in health. Recent charges as to his accounts and official conduct led to an investigation of his military service, which showed that his army record was bad, that he was not in the battles as alleged, and that the claim made as to his wounds was entirely unfounded. He was also found to be guilty of presenting fraudulent accounts as Consul. as Consul. The case has been under investi

RAISED THE CRY OF BOODLE. The Same Old Circus Again in the C. J., U.

At the Central Labor Union meeting in Clarendon Hall yesterday, debate on the report o the Arbitration Committee recommending that the boycott on George Ehret's beer should not be endorsed because Ehret's men get union wages, took up all the session.

Theodore F. Cuno said that the brewers troubles had split the Central Labor Union twice, and that whether or not Mr. Ehret was paying union wages, they should endorse the boycott unless the employees joined the union If they allowed this chance to pass the Brew ers' Union would be swept out of existence A delegate said that the report of the Arbitration Committee looked as if it had been drawn up by Mr. Ehret and Secretary Seifert of the there was "something behind" the report.

Meyer Dampi said: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my contempt for such a report. This report whitewashes George Ehret. I don't mean to say boodle was used cries of "Oh! oh!", but I do say that if boodle had been used the report could not have been more in favor of Mr. Ehret."

Delegate Lovering, Chairman of the committee which made the report, said that the Knights of Labor had their grip on the seventy-five pool braweries, and if the boycott were off the Knights could unionize them.

Delegate Dampi, whose organization, the Cigarmakers Union, is connected with the American Federation of Labor, said that this proposition was dictated by "unholy motives," and Theodors F. Cuno made a speech about "capitalistic robbers." A man who tried to speak in favor of the report was howled down.

"Why," he shouted, "it appears to me that there was a foregone conclusion, and that was that the report must be unfavorable to Ehrot's brewery. You were prepared heforehand to receive no other kind of report."

A. C. Lovering, who presented the report said: "The talk of boodle is too absurd to report yo seriously. I believe that if some of the report was another uproar, and about a dezen men started to speak at once.

"I'm not done yet," shouted Lovering.

"This talk of boodle is the outburst of a disease men started to speak at once.

Club Advises Disbandment. What it was proposed to call the France Cleveland Influence Club will not participate in the National Convention of Democratic clubs in this city next month. Since its organization, three months ago, it has been awaiting the endorsement of the National Democratic Committee. This endorsement has not been forthcoming, and the Secretary of the club has resigned in disgust.

The Secretary is Miss Sarah E. Fuller. She was seen yesterday at Central Park. L. I., where she has been spending the summer.

"So far as I am concerned," said Miss Fuller. "the Influence Club is dead. It has never been remanded since Grover Cleveland wrote refusing to let Mrs. Cleveland's name be used. If the Democratic Committee had given us support we would now be doing effective work, The Republicans have backed Mrs. J. Fillen Foster in her organization of Republicans women, and I understand that the Republicans intend to organize the colored women into clubs. It seems to me that if women can help the Sepublicans: they might at least be recognized by the Democrata."

Miss Fuller has written to Mrs. Ormsby, the President of the club that in her opinion it would be well for the club to disband.

The Democratic Cammaign Committee was the body from which the Democratic ladies expected assistance. The Chairman, Don M. Dickinson, said that the committee had done nothing in the matter of taking up the Influence Club movement. The President of the club had called on him and talked matters over, but he had decided to do nothing.

DR. PARKHURST BACK IN HIS PULPIT. He May Lecture This Winter on Notes

Taken in Europe During His Vacation. If any of the large congregation which filled Dr. Parkhurst's church yesterday morning poped or expected that he would preach on municipal affairs, or refer to his study of vice municipal affairs, or refer to his study of vice in London and Paris, they were disappointed. He preached from the text, "I came that they may have life," and his discourse was unmixed with politics. After the services many of his congregation went forward to welcome home their pastor, and he chatted with them at the foot of the altar for nearly an hour.

Dr. Parkhurst afterward said that he had studied the question of social vice while in Europe, and that if he lectured on the subject it would not be until winter.

THE LONDON MONEY MARKET.

The money lenders of Lombard street, who have been suffering from dull times ever since the Baring collapse nearly two years ago. seem at present to be in a worse plight than ever. The Bank of England rate of discount remains nominally at 2 per cent. per annum, but in the open market good short bills are taken at 1 per cept. and a trifle less, while loans on call can be had at so small a fraction £10,000, or $50,000, amounts to only about 60 cents. For permanent investment the borrow ing demand is also light. Lenders are glad to get 3 per cent. per annum on good security. and are buying consols, first-class railroad debentures, and municipal loans at prices which yield a shade under that rate.

Our sympathy with this distress of British capitalists is of course very much mitigated by the consideration that it happens opportunely to counteract some of the evil results of our own hazardous financial policy. The bad amazingly in meeting the demands of our forsuch intervention of Providence in our behalf, we, with equal good fortune, have not the same need of it. In spite of the desire of European financial institutions to strengthen their gold reserves, and of the special effort making by Austria-Hungary to acquire the means of resuming specie payments on a gold basis, the shipments of the metal from this resumed, probably, for some months to come. portations by the quarantine precautions against the cholers, but more to the difficulty of employing money abroad profitably, indi-The shrinkage in the volume of trade in Great Britain, which began with the Argentine collapse, has been assisted by the financial troubles of Brazil, following closely upon those of Argentina, by the bad harvests of last year, and, finally, though not to the extent often asserted, by the operation of the Mc-Kinley tariff. The bankruptcy of the large area of South America covered by Argentina and Brazil has naturally diminished the abili-British goods. The partial failure of the crops at home have had the same effect upon home consumption. In special branckes of manumetal, the exports of Great Britain to this by our new tariff, though they are now resuming their former proportions. The general result of all these causes has been to reduce the total amount of British exports f home manufactures, during the first eight months of this year, to about £150,000,000. against £105,000,000 during the corresponding period of 1891. On the other hand, the months have been £7,000,000 greater than they were for the first eight months of 1891, and those of cotton and other raw materials about £4,000,000 less, showing a net increase in imports of £3,000,000 and more. Accompanying this shrinkage in the imports of raw goods an unwillingness has been shown to the amount of fresh capital invested in them £330,000,000 for the two years previous to that dulness of speculation has resulted in a reduction of bank clearings on stock pay days from an average of £60,000,000 in 1890 to one of about £40,000,000 since Jan. 1 last.

The depression in the British shipbuilding industry also reflects in a marked manner the The year 1801 was one of great activity in the new production having been 1,273.784 tons against 1,271,110 tons in 1890, and 1,300,933 tons in 1889, and the amount under construction at the close of the year having been 793,-913 tons against 734,010 tons at the close of 1890. This continued large addition of new shipping in the face of a decreasing demand for it did not fail to attract at the time the attention of thoughtful observers and to lead them to predict just what has happened. At the annual meeting of the Associated British Chambers of Commerce, held last Tuesday, its President declared that "shipbuilding was little more than a remembrance." The effect panic is likely to have. I need not point out.

mand for its manufactures and of employment for its shipping the more serious to Great Britain, is its dependence upon the profits of the manufactures and of its carrying trade for the means of feeding its people. Its net imports of articles of food and drink in 1891 came to over £150,000,000, and for the first eight months of this year their value has been nearly £100,000,000. Notwithstanding a high cultivation, which makes the average yield of wheat twenty-seven bushels to whereas on our new and fertile land the average is but about eleven bushels, the total harvest of wheat in Great Britain and Ireland for the present comparatively favorable year is estimated at only 62,154,000 hushels, while the requirements for seed and for consumption as food are put at 250,052,000 bushels, leaving a deficiency of 187,998,000 bushels to be supplied by importation. In addition, the country consumes annually, beyond its own production, about 40,000,000 bushels of barley, 45,-000,000 bushels of cats, and 8,000,000 bushels of beans. It also imports some 60,000,000 bushels of our Indian corn, which takes the place of other breadstuffs, and an immense quantity of beef, pork, and other animal food, the value of which, with that of butter, choose, eggs, and similar articles, is nearly £60,-000,000 annually. Nearly a century ago the famous Thomas Malthus, in his essay on the rate of increase of population, predicted this deficiency in the British food supply, and was violently denounced for doing it. The fulfilment of his prediction has indeed been aided by causes of which he took no account, yet his principle has proved to be sound.

I would not be understood as asserting that the people of Great Britain have no other means of paying for the food and drink they import than their manufactures and their shipping. On the contrary, they have an enormous income, derived from their invest-ments all over the world, and especially in this country. That many hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of our railroad securities beong to British espitalists is a matter of no toriety, and it is well understood, besides, that they are interested in numbers of our mines. manufactories, gas and water works, land companies, breweries, and other enterprises which yield them a large revenue. How much of our banking and insurance capital is furnished by them it is impossible to say, but the amount cannot fail to be important. What they have done here they have done on almost as large a scale on the continent of Europe, in Asia, in Africa, and, to their sorrow, in South America. The result is that for many years in succession the imports into Great Britain have exceeded its exports by £100,000,000, or $500,000,000 a year. Accord ing to the views of a certain eccentric school of economists, the country has become impoverished by just the amount of this apparently unfavorable "balance of trade," whereas it is merely the expenditure at home of the profits of business enterprises carried on abroad, and is as legitimately earned as if the capital yielding it had been invested within the four seas surrounding the Island. Still, large as the income is which the British people derive from their foreign enterprises. their carrying trade, and from their loans to foreign borrowers, it is not so large but that a small reduction of it makes a great many of them feel uncomfortable. That is what is the matter with them now. The millions they have sunk in South America have been unproductive for the last two years, and are likely to remain so for many years to come. They have likewise lost a great deal by the reduc tion of dividends on our Western railroad stocks, and by the failure of many of our land and industrial speculations into which they income from their investments in the British East Indies has suffered from the fall in silver, which has reduced the value of the rupee from two shillings sterling to about sixteen pence. This it is which gives to the cause of bimetallism so much support in Great Britain, just as the competition of our breadstuffs and provisions and that of German manufactures is reviving there a clamor for protection under the new title of "fair trade." It is not likely that either the nation during our time, but the coming them proves how much the views of the best people are influenced by their personal interests. Just as our farmers and planters want a cheap silver dollar to make higher prices for

British landowner and manufacturer wants to shut out foreign competition. The causes of the prevalent depression in the London market being such as they are, it is mpossible to predict when it will come to an end. So far as I can judge, the state of things in Great Britain is very similar to that which we have experienced here after the great crashes of 1837, 1857, and 1873. People must have time to recover from their losses and to pick up courage for a fresh start. This will come in the course of time, but until it does come the present stagnation will continue. It is fortunate for us that it exists just at this juncture, when our currency is at so dangerous a point of expansion, and we ought to be very thankful for it. MATTHEW MARSHALL

Co., which has been organized in conjunction with the Title Guarantee A Trust Co., and at present has offices with that company, is to provide for those un acquainted with real estate values a perfectly safe in vestment. Those who desire absolute security of can find in guaranteed mortgages an escape from th uncertainties of railway and kindred investments. The company was organized because it was believed that the investing public was very tired of its experience with all that class of securities about which the investor knows absolutely nothing, and in the manipu tate has this to commend it, that a man's security cannot be reorganized away from him, or so juggled with that be cannot tell whether it is worth anything or not. There is not much chance for speculation in mortmortrages us those who know little about real estate
